Diamond Drill

Out of the Past

October 15, 1926

The skill they acquired back home in the cow barn with a battered bucket and the three legged milking stool is enabling hundreds of energetic farm boys to pay all or part of their expenses at the Michigan State College in Lansing. Dressed in their spotless white uniforms the students can be found busily at work in the School's model diary learning the most modern dairy methods while earning their way through college.

An automobile driven by a resident of Detroit, unfamiliar with the streets in Crystal Falls, narrowly escaped injury while travelling east on West Superior Avenue admiring the local school buildings crashing through the iron fence at the rear of the Iron County Courthouse. The driver claiming to have been blinded by the fog did not realize that the road ended at the tee intersection with South Seventh Street. The automobile was severely damaged ending up on its nose a few feet from the Courthouse Building.
