According to a recent study, Iron County residents who sacrificed an hour of sleep for the change to "Daylight Savings Time" for the five month long summer period will get an additional 152 hours of recreational sunshine until clocks are turned back on October 2nd. By that time all County residents gain back their 60 minutes of sleep and collectively had 2,584,000 more hours of sunshine in which to bask. However; the question becomes how is this extra daylight actually "created".
