Out of the Past

June 5, 1925

A heavy wind storm that gained near the velocity of a tornado struck the Albert Drake farm at Mansfield. One barn was blown down another barn badly wrecked and a portion of the roof of the house was blown off. From all indications it is supposed to have been the tail end of a tornado that hit Tyran Northwest of Florence. A farm house and barn were destroyed along with a rural school house.

It is a pleasure to visit the Crystal Falls City Owned Cemetery these days and note the vast improvements that has been made over the past few years. The principle improvement is to the east end of the property known as the Catholic portion of the grounds. All the shrubs and unsightly underbrush has been removed and grass is now growing luxuriantly all over this portion as well as in the older improved part. The City will continue improvements as funding becomes available.
